

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

It is asserted that several hundred bushels of potatoes remain undug in Lincoln, farmers not being able to dig them before freezing weather came.

The new coffer dam at Highgate has been completed. The first one was washed out by the flood of a few weeks ago, and the loss to Swanton was about $5,000.

A young men's club for Rutland, regardless of church connections, is the plan of Rev. Arthur H. Bradford. He was the originator of the plan for a center community.

Mr. Howe, living on the Warren farm in Perkinsville, is alone with 60 head of cattle, 25 of them cows, his help, which he was paying $30 a month and board, having left him to find higher wages.

The partridge season of 1917 closed Nov. 30 and it has been almost the poorest hunting ever known. Old hunters claim this is because the long wet spring had a bad effect on the hatching of young birds.

Robert Force, a resident of West Rutland for 47 years, dropped dead Friday while at work at the Vermont Marble company's plant. He was apparently in good health when he went to work in the morning. Mr. Force was 73 years old Sept. 28.

Corporal Edmund Howe, son of Editor Frank E. Howe of the Bennington Banner, has been appointed as one of 66 candidates from 12 states, soldiers in the service, to take West Point examinations in March. Corporal Howe belongs to Co. I of Brattleboro.

While Mrs. J. Shirley Bassett of Brattleboro took her baby up to their apartment on the third floor of the Doolittle building in that place a few days ago, she left her handbag on the steps and when she returned for it in less than 15 minutes, bag and contents had disappeared.

The Thanksgiving dinner of the family of Jay Newton of Wallingford came from the sky. Mrs. Newton, hearing a commotion among her hens, investigated and saw a goshawk hovering over the yard with something in its talons. Her husband shot the hawk and found that it had in its clutches a wild duck, still alive. The bird was not badly mutilated and it was killed and dressed for the table.

The Pythian building at St. Johnsbury was sold at auction last week to Charles J. Gifford at that place for $17,500, which was nearly $3,000 less than the successful bid made by the late Charles Whipple of West Burke when the property was up at auction before. The purchase, so rested upon Mr. Whipple's mind that he committed suicide before the transfer of the property was made.

Clifford Britton, in charge of the naval recruiting station at Burlington, was best man at the marriage in Springfield, Mass., Nov. 29, of Miss Edna Gordon and Gustav Sandberg, the latter a sailor in the U. S. navy. Mr. Sandberg wanted a German march like Log Cabin or Mendelssohn's and at his request "Columbia, the Gem of the Ocean," was used as a processional and recessional.

James B. Dunton observed his 92d birthday anniversary at his home in West Georgia Nov. 25. He was born on the farm where he now lives and in the same house. He makes frequent visits to St. Albans, eight miles distant, and is remarkably active for one of his years. He is the oldest member of the Baptist church at Georgia Plains and a veteran of the Civil war, having served with the 12th Vermont regiment.

TOTAL DEER KILLING 981.
Essex County Leads the State with 156 Reported.

Fish and Game Commissioner Linus Leavens of Cambridge announces that 981 deer were killed in Vermont during the open season of nine days last month, in contrast to 1630 killed during eighteen days in the year previous. Essex county reports the largest number killed, or 156, with Windham county second with 124 and Washington county third with 106. The largest bucks reported were in Lamoille and Orange counties, the animals weighing 350 pounds each. George Jones of Hyde Park and Byron Pitts of West Fairlee were the hunters who captured the bucks. The total weight of deer carcasses killed during the open season was 168,671 pounds and the average weight of the animals was 172 pounds. The number of does illegally, or accidentally, killed was 25 and the number of buck fawns illegally, or accidentally, killed was 11. Special efforts were made to maintain an efficient warden service patrol through the open season, and as a result lawless hunters have not been in evidence. The policy has been to prevent violations, rather than to start prosecutions. Several wardens report extinguishing fires started by careless hunters. There have been a few accidents due to carelessness on the part of the hunters.

Windsor Aviation Recruits are Honored.
Windsor, Dec. 3.—The Nemo club was filled with citizens Saturday night at a demonstration in honor of several local young men who will leave today for the aviation corps. Speeches were made by Rev. Fraser Metzger of Randolph and Raymond Trainor of White River Junction.

IMPORTANT MESSAGE
To Every Poulterer From Herbert Hoover, Head of the Food Administration.

To the American Poultry Association and Producers of Poultry and Eggs in the United States: We are short of red meat. Our soldiers and our allies require more than ever before. We are advocating in every household, every hotel and restaurant in this country the substitution of poultry for red meat. Increased production of poultry can be effected much faster than beef, pork and mutton. While we want increase in all the latter, we must have a quick response in poultry and poultry products. There is a great waste of poultry feeds from every household and every farm. It requires little labor. Can you not supply the increased supply we need? Herbert Hoover.

WHY IS A CAT'S TAIL?

Does It Serve a Useful Purpose, or Is It Merely Ornamental?

The question having arisen, "Why does the cat have a tail?" the scientists seem willing to answer it with another question, "How would the cat look without a tail?" No one can gainsay the fact that the tail is a valuable ornament. The cat without one is a sorry sight. But there are those who maintain that the tail serves the cat as a sort of gyroscope, balancing the body in leaping, says the Popular Science Monthly.

This cannot be wholly true, for Manx cats get along very well without tails, and rabbits have no use for them at all. Yet both the Manx cats and rabbits do a lot of leaping. After all, it looks as if the tail is only an ornament unless it is a kind of safety valve for expression in exciting times.

Of course there are instances where the tail serves some purpose other than that of art. The monkey finds his useful as a sort of fifth leg; the horse uses his as a fly swatter, as does the lion; the crocodile uses his for swimming, as do the seal and the turtle and other aquatic creatures, and the rattlesnake uses his for warning enemies.

According to W. D. Matthews of the American Museum of Natural History, the tail was a necessary organ for the aquatic and amphibious ancestors from which the higher animals are descended. When they took to terrestrial life and to walking on all fours the tail became more or less superfluous.

DON'T NEGLECT A FEVER.

Keep a Clinical Thermometer in the Home and Use It.

Every home should have a thermometer in the household medicine closet. No family, especially where there are children, should be without a thermometer. The thermometer gives the correct temperature of the body whenever it is necessary to find out what it may be.

The beginning of an illness is shown by the thermometer. When one is well the normal temperature is 98.6 degrees. Any rise in the temperature, especially if it reaches 100 or 101 degrees, shows there is fever, and a physician should be called in to treat the condition and find out the cause of the fever.

Children and adults having a temperature of over 100 degrees should remain indoors and in bed. It is always dangerous to go about the house or out of the house when there is any elevation of the body temperature.

When one suffers from a cold there may be a temperature of 101 or even 102, and if one goes about the house or out of doors it is no uncommon thing for him later on to find himself in bed suffering from bronchitis or pneumonia, and death frequently results, and all from neglecting to remain indoors when having a bad cold.

Buy a clinical thermometer and use it. It may save you from severe illness by showing you that you require the services of a physician. Philadelphia Record.

Macbeth and McKinley.
Long before William McKinley became a national and international figure I made his acquaintance and won his friendship and good will, which ended only when he passed to eternal rest. We often met at his home in Canton, O., and at the house of a mutual friend, M. R. H. of the son-in-law of Rabbi Levinson, the editor of the family and school Bible.

When he was elected a member of congress this intimacy continued, and many social and pleasant hours were passed in my home and in his rooms at the Ebbitt House, where he lived during his whole congressional career. He was at all times genial, and no matter what he had to do, either for his constituents or for his friends, he was ever the same patient, courteous and self-sacrificing gentleman. In due course of time he was elected governor of Ohio. I telegraphed him, "Thane of Cawdor, king that shall be," to which he promptly replied, "Thanks, but not yet."—Simon Wolf in American Hebrew.

First Aid For Fainters.
Every member of the Washington police force carries when on duty in crowds a pill box full of tiny glass tubes of aromatic spirits of ammonia, according to the Popular Science Monthly. These are for reviving persons who faint in the street.

The tubes are about an inch long and slightly more than an eighth of an inch in diameter. Each has a wrapping of absorbent cotton and over this a silk gauze covering.

Slight pressure between the fingers is sufficient to break the tube. The ammonia is promptly absorbed by the cotton about it, which also serves to prevent the sharp particles of glass from doing any harm. Held beneath the nose of the person who has fainted, the fumes of the ammonia soon revive her. The tubes are stored in all the patrol boxes about the city and are carried in patrol wagons and police ambulances.

Got His Answer.
A facetious gallant at Ocean Grove took a little girl on his knee and said: "I don't love you, Nellie."

All the ladies on the veranda laughed, but little Nellie frowned and said: "You've got to love me; you've got to."

"Got to! How so?" laughed the man. "Because," said Nellie stoutly, "you've got to love them that hate you, and I hate you, goodness knows!"—Washington Star.

Going Too Far.
Mrs. Boffin—I read in the paper that a woman in looking after another woman to see what she had on fell out of a window. Mr. Boffin—Well, that only goes to show that some women in trying to follow the fashions can go too far.—Illustrated Bits.

Clean Breast of It.
Mother (coming from pantry)—Robert, did you pick all the white meat off the chicken?
Bobbie—Well, ma, to make a clean breast of it, I did.—Boston Transcript.

WARTIME SIGNALS.

A Clever Device That Was Used by the Ancient Romans.

In view of the varied and scientific signal methods used in modern warfare a description of the ancient signaling methods found in the writings of Polybius will prove of interest.

This writer had observed the operations of the Roman generals before the fall of Carthage in 146 B. C. and says they provided their signal stations with earthenware vessels, exactly equal in all respects and fitted with cocks which allowed the water to escape at the same rate. They were carefully tested to make sure of the last requirement. Cords of smaller diameter than the vessel were floated in them, bearing rods, upon which were marked at a distance of three fingers apart the simplest and most urgent military messages. They were used as follows:

The sending station raised a torch. The receiving station, seeing it, did likewise. This was a signal for both stations to open the cocks of their water jars. When the rod at the sending station had sunk so that the desired message appeared at the edge of the jar another torch was raised, and the receiving station shut off its cock and read the message on the rod, marked identically with that at the sending station.—Detroit Free Press.

Origin of a Postal Custom.
The steamship Oregon was lost off Fire Island on March 14, 1890. She was rammed by a coastwise schooner, remaining afloat for half an hour, a time which made it possible to save every person aboard. When her mail was fished up and delivered the pieces were stamped with a statement that they had been in the wreck, the first instance of a practice which is now employed by direction of the international postal union. The credit for this simple device is believed to be due to Edward M. Morgan, at that time in a subordinate position in the New York postoffice, who foresaw that a few minutes' work with a rubber stamp would forestall an infinitude of complaint.—New York Sun.

Desperate.
Mr. Smith (making a purchase for Mrs. Smith, who has instructed him to get her a pair of three and a half shoes)—Let me see a pair of ladies' 5's, wide.
Shopman (who knows the Smiths)—Why, Mr. Smith, your wife always orders 3's!
Mr. Smith—My man, I am not going to suffer the tortures of the infernal regions every morning watching that woman trying to get a bushel of feet into a peck of shoes. I am going to take her a pair that will fit her.—London Answers.

Badly Expressed.
Mrs. Key was visiting some friends and left the following card to her next door neighbor: "Dear Mrs. Garrison—Would you please put a little food for the cat I have been feeding all season? It will eat almost anything. But do not put yourself out."—Dallas News.

"Henry, the four is all out."
"So is my money."
"The potatoes are all gone."
"So is my credit."
"Well, we can't starve!"
"Can't we? That's good! I was afraid we might."—Boston Transcript.

Established a Record.
"What did mother say when you proposed to her, daddy?"
"She hung her head and was silent for several minutes. And that is the only time I have ever known her to be silent for several minutes."—Detroit Free Press.
